Dear Sir

I have ready for the Press the first number of 'Life of Joseph Brant and History of the Six Nation Indians'. The Indian Department at Ottawa has written 'Wishing to see your work a success would advise you to submit the MSS to an ethnologist before publication'. I intend being in Toronto soon to see my daughter who is at University. Would it be convenient for you to accord me a few minutes interview regarding this work.

The Indian can only be identified through his language. I am claiming that I have discovered the radicals of this language. They are the most historic people in the world.

When I took up this work, Mr Frazer P.A. wrote 'The value of all that has been written regarding the Indians is a question with learned men, because the work has not been approached scientifically'. The American Bureau of Ethnology is perhaps the best, but it reveals nothing as to their origin. An old Chief has been gathering MSS for Thirty five years and his knowledge of language and other things revealed the radicals to me. Every word in their language may be traced back to a few roots. It all seems so simple to me when the radicals are found. It seems to throw a flood of light on other languages.

Trusting that you can accord me a short interview

I remain

Yours most sincerely

Dear Mrs. Brown:

If you will let me know when you are in Toronto I shall endeavour to arrange a time that would be suitable for you to come to see me. I should say, however, that I expect to be in Chicago from Friday afternoon of this week to Tuesday morning of next week.
